Arena Players Repertory Theater Will Move to Vanderbilt Estate for its Fall-Winter Season

Season Opens October 14 with Yasmina Reza's Award-Winning 'God of Carnage'

CENTERPORT, NY (September 7, 2011) – The Arena Players Repertory Theater, after 39 years in Farmingdale, will move its operations to the Suffolk County Vanderbilt Museum for the company's 2011 fall-winter season. The building the Arena Players currently occupy will be sold to private developers, artistic director Frederic DeFeis said.

Productions at the Vanderbilt will be performed in the Education Center, home for many years to the Arena Players' Children's Theatre. The Arena Players Summer Shakespeare Festival has been performed outdoors in the Vanderbilt Mansion courtyard. The season opens Friday, October 14. (All plays are subject to availability).

Repertory Theater Schedule

- God of Carnage, the award-winning comedy by Yasmina Reza, October 14 – November 6
- Betrayal by Howard Pinter, November 11 – December 4
- Murder at the Howard Johnson's by Ron Clark and Sam Bobrick, December 9 – December 31 (excluding December 24 & 25)
